Alongside the changes from April 2015 to the access of pension funds, significant changes were made to the tax treatment of pension funds on death. This factsheet summarises the rules which may allow a pension fund to pass free of all taxes on the estate of the deceased and free of all taxes on the beneficiaries of the pension fund.

Tax charges on pension funds

Prior to 6 April 2015, there were tax charges on death to reflect the principle that income tax relief would have been given on contributions into the pension fund and therefore some tax should be payable when the fund is paid out. For example:

- if the fund was paid as a lump sum to a beneficiary, tax at 55% of the fund value was payable
- if the fund was placed in a drawdown account to provide income to a 'dependant' (for example a spouse), the income drawn down was taxed at the dependant's marginal rate of income tax.

There were some exceptions from the 55% charge. It was (and still is) possible to pass on a pension fund as a tax free lump sum where the individual has not taken any tax free cash or income from the fund and they die under the age of 75.

Other tax charges on pension funds - changes from April 2015

The government introduced significant exceptions from the tax charges for benefits first paid on or after 6 April 2015.

Under the new system, anyone who dies under the age of 75 will be able to give their remaining defined contribution pension fund to anyone completely tax free, whether it is in a drawdown account or untouched.

The fund can be paid out as a lump sum to a beneficiary or taken out by the beneficiary through a 'flexi-access drawdown account'.

Those aged 75 or over when they die will be able to pass their defined contribution pension fund to any beneficiary who will then be able to draw down on it as income at their marginal rate of income tax. Beneficiaries will also have the option of receiving the pension as a lump sum payment, subject to a tax charge of 45%. From 6 April 2016 the lump sum is charged to tax at the recipient's marginal rate of income tax. Lifetime Allowance protection is available in certain circumstances but must be applied for to obtain a higher allowance.

It is always advisable to ensure a nomination is in place to provide the pensions provides with your wishes as to who should benefit from the pension fund. Without nomination the pensions fund can apply their discretion as to who benefits

The new tax treatment does not apply to the extent that the pension fund exceeds the Lifetime Allowance (currently £1.03 million).

Tax treatment of inherited annuities

Beneficiaries of individuals who die under the age of 75 with a joint life or guaranteed term annuity will be able to receive any future payments from such policies tax free. The tax rules will also be changed to allow joint life annuities to be passed on to any beneficiary.
